Passage -1

Education is not an end, but a means to an end. In other words, we do not educate children only for the purpose of educating them; our purpose is to fit them for life. As soon as we realise this fact, we will understand that it is very important to choose a system of education which will really prepare children for life. It is not enough first to choose the first system of education one finds, or to continue with one's system of education; without examining it to see whether it, in fact, is suitable or not.

In many modern countries, it has for sometime been fashionable to think that, by free education for all, whether rich or poor, clever or stupid - one can solve all the problems of society and build a perfect nation. But we can already see that free education; for all is not enough. We find in such countries a far larger number of people, with University degrees than there are jobs for them to fill. Because of their degrees, they refuse to do what they think low work, and in fact work with the hands which is thought to be dirty - and shameful in such countries. But we have only to think a moment to understand that the work of a completely uneducated farmer is far more important than that of a professor; we can live without education but we die if we have no food. In countries where there are no servants because everyone is ashamed of doing such work, the professors have to waste much of their time doing manual housework.

In fact when we say that all of us must be educated to fit us for life, it means that we must be educated in such a way that, firstly each of us can do whatever job is suited to his brain, aptitude and ability. Secondly, that we can realise that all jobs are necessary to society, and that it is very bad to be ashamed of one's works, or to scorn someone else. Only such a type of education can be called valuable to society.

Questions

i) What should we keep in mind when we choose a system of education? 1
ii) Why do people refuse to do what they think low work? 2
iii) What is the definition of free education for modern countries? 1
iv) 'An uneducated farmer's work is more important than a professor's work'. Do you agree? Why/ why not? 2
v) 'Education is valuable to society'. Frame a question on this statement. 1
vi Choose a word from the passage which is a synonym to 'Contempt'. 1

Passage - 2

Jockeying generally involves three areas and as such Jockeys are called a Video Jockey (VJ), Radio Jockey (RJ) and Disc Jockey (DJ). With radio finding its voice again, if you are over 18, with a strong command of language, pleasant voice and love for music, being a Radio Jockey (RJ) is a new career option open to you.

A friendly and interesting voice is a necessary attribute, but not an all sufficient one. The RJ must be able to research his own script and break it into interesting modules. Humour is the lifeline of radio chatting; the RJ cannot afford to compromise on that. In most cases a radio jockey has a talking time of just six minutes in a programme spread over an hour. The challenge, therefore, is to find something witty to say and then say it clearly and directly in a manner that will leave a mark. For the entire duration of your slot you have to juggle between talking to the audience playing the songs, cuing in the advertisements at predefined intervals, and entertaining requests (if it is a dial in show).

This profession also demands that you continuously innovate with your scripts and make your delivery as creative as possible. Voice modulation and correct inflection of emotions are very important. An RJ must get the feel of the medium and link his conversation to the music. He must have the general knowledge of the music he plays and not just having a leaning to one genre. Pop, hip hop, the blues, rock or classical - he should know and enjoy them all. The job not only involves glamour and fun but also requires a lot of hard work. The aspiring RJs must listen to radio regularly to understand what it takes to make a good show.

Questions

(i) What basic qualities should a person possess to be a radio jockey?

(ii) Why has humour been called the lifeline of radio chatting?

(iii) Why is radio jockeying a challenging task?

(iv) How can an RJ make his script creative and innovative?

(v) Which word from the passage means the same as :- “introduce new methods or ideas”

Passage -3

Valentine’s Day is celebrated on February 14 every year to honour St. Valentine. The association of St. Valentine’s Day with love and courtship rose from coincidence of the date with the Roman festival of Lupercalia. The festival is believed to have been in honour of Faunus, the Roman God of flocks and fertility. Also known as Lupercus, he was worshipped in a temple on Palatine Hill, and the festival was celebrated on February 14. The festival survived until the 5th century A.D.

The Christian church ended the feast of Lupercalia, transforming it into the feast of St. Valentine. The name St. Valentine is given to two legendary Christian martyrs whose feasts were formerly observed on February 14. One was a Roman priest martyred in 269 A.D. The second was a Bishop of Terni martyred in Rome. In 1969, the feast day was dropped from the Vatican calendar.

The great popularity of greeting cards, however, began in 19th Century England and America with cheap, efficient, colour printing methods and low postage rates. By the 1880s there were hundreds of varieties of mass-printed Christmas, New Year’s and Valentine cards. But it was Esther Howland, a 19-year-old American girl, who turned it into a global event.

Born in Worcester, Massachusetts in 1828, she was the youngest of three children. She recognised the potential in mass-producing Valentine’s Day cards, when she received a fancy card from her father’s friend. She felt she could make a better one. She designed her first card and showed it to her father, who was impressed. He encouraged her to make more cards.

She sent several cards to her brother, when he went on a sales trip to New York. Much to her surprise, he returned with more than $5000 in orders. Faced with the huge order, she asked her three best friends to help her. A Valentine assembly line was born at the Howland home. Esther placed her first ad in the local paper, The Daily Spy on February 5, 1850. Business grew rapidly and in 1879, The New England Valentine Company was born. She rented a building and moved the business. She published 31 pages of verse in a small book called The New England Valentine Co.’s Verse Book for 1879, and this book allowed the customer to choose the verse for the card.
Questions

(i) When is the Valentine’s Day celebrated and to honour whom? 1
(ii) What are the two emotions associated with the Valentine’s Day? 2

Passage - 4

The ‘generation gap’ is not a new phenomenon. In every generation, the old men are found shaking their heads about the good old days when young people knew better and showed due reverence to age and tradition. The generation gap is actually the difference between the high spirits and impatience of youth on one hand and the caution and prudence of old age on the other. Young people are always full of vigour, life and energy; they are adventurous, bold, even reckless and are always willing to take risks. Caution; prudence, calm reflection, careful calculation before taking any plunge, etc are not part of their mental make up. Infact young people laugh at elders who habitually think calmly and profoundly before taking a decision and calculate the perils, if any, that may arise there of. The young and the old will always disagree because their basic approach to life is different and their was thoughts are like parallel lines, seemingly always converse. While the young are always ready for fresh adventures they are often confronted by elders who warn them against the risks they can face.

Neil Armstrong who was the first human to land on the moon said, “One small step for a man but one giant leap for mankind.” Such major leaps would not have been possible if the youth did not have an adventurous spirit. “No pain, no gain” is a well known saying. The old would perhaps impress “Let us not have anything more, we have enough”. But is that reason enough to prevent the young from experimenting?

Questions

(i) What do the old people talk about good old days? 1
(ii) What is the old age contrasted with? Give an example. 2
(iii) “The thoughts of the old and the young are like parallel lines”. Explain 2
(iv) Which characteristic of the youth lead to major discoveries? 1

Passage - 5 (8 Marks)

All that could be seen on the station platform at Chainpur was a cloud of confetii. Brighbly coloured paper flags danced above bamboo sticks, held by hundreds of excited children who had come to meet the Jeevan Rekha Express. Then, in a thin monsoon drizzle, the train emerged around the corner, the brass band stuck up and children clapped, mesmerised, as the carriages, painted with rows of red, yellow and blue daisies, slid into the sliding.

Minutes later, while officials exchanged greetings and garlands, a carriage door opened and the children clambered on to the train. Still clutching their flags, they peered cautiously at the three shiny red operating tables, the dials and the anaesthetic machines which had replaced the rows of seats.

The Jeevan Rekha or Lifeline Express, is reportedly the world’s first hospital train, bringing surgical care for the first time to hundreds of remote rural villages.

I joined the train at Kalahari, a tiny coal mining village in a forested area of southern water and electricity supply, although it has its own water filtering machine and a generator to take over during power shortages. The two roomed station building had also to function as a calliper workshop, diagnostic centre, registration area and accommodation for relatives and patients.

Operations have been confined to three areas; orthopaedic surgery for polio, cataract and middle ear operations. Callipers, spectacles and hearing aids are also fitted and eventually the project will be integrated with an immunisation and health education programme.

Questions :

a) What purpose does Lifeline Express serve? What is the other name given to it?   2
b) How did the children welcome the train?   1
c) What can one find in place of passenger seats in the train?   1
d) What function does the station building perform?   2

Passage - 6

It is not essential that development must always affect the ecosystems and environment adversely. Development is possible without causing such damages. Such development is generally referred to as ‘sustainable development’. It means that the development can be sustained for long. It would not be short lived. Sustainable development is possible only if the development is in agreement to the health of the ecosystems and it is without much adverse effect on the environment. It is not possible that development is attained and there is no adverse effect whatsoever on the ecosystems and environment. But, if the adverse effects are within reasonable limits which can be repaired and replenished by the ecosystems and environment on their own, such development will be long living and can be termed as ‘sustainable’. For example, forest ecosystems is a resource. We can remove wood, timber, various other produce from the forest without putting the future of the forest under threat. The forest will replenish such removal of materials in natural way. So, such use or development of forest products can be termed ‘sustainable development’. If we harvest more than what the forest ecosystem can replenish or replace naturally, the existence of the forest ecosystem will come under threat.

(i) What is sustainable development? 1
(ii) When is it possible? 2
(iii) Upto what extent are the adverse effects permissible in sustainable development? 2
(iv) Name some of the things we get from the forest. 1

Passage - 7

The French Scientist Marie Curie became the first woman to win the Nobel Prize - one of the greatest honours in the world. What’s more, she was the first person ever to win the prize twice.

Marie Curie was born in Poland. She moved to France and studied at the greatest University Known; as the Sorbonne. She was one of the best students there. She worked very hard - often late into the night, sometimes eating little more than bread, butter and tea.

She married Pierre Curie after completing her Science and Maths degree. Pierre was also a scientist and the two worked together. Another scientist named Henri Bequerel, had already discovered certain types of materials which sent out tiny ‘bullets of energy all the time. Marie Curie called this action ‘radioactivity’ Marie Curie studied radio activity and discovered two new elements that were radioactive - Polonium and Radium. Over the years, Marie Curie’s discoveries about radioactivity have proved extremely important in many ways. Radioactivity helps doctors identify and treat diseases. A major form of power generation based on nuclear energy has been developed, a process involving radioactivity.

Marie Curie’s entire life was spent working for science. She fell ill and eventually died because of working so closely with radioactive materials. She was awarded the Nobel Prize in 1903 for her work on radioactivity and in 1911 for discovering radium.

Passage - 8
Advertisements have become a part of our lives. We cannot live without them, they attack us from all sides. Step out of the house and they stare at you from all corners, promoting products from needles to CDs, from cricket bats to gold watches. At home, TV programmes are interrupted every five minutes to tell us which toothpaste we should use, what kind of salt is good for us or even which toy we should give to a new-born baby. So many goods are displayed, so many temptations are presented that the poor consumer does not know what to buy or reject.

Advertisements are a help because they tell us about a new product. Without them, one would not know what advance has been made in any field. We will not be able to learn about the merits of a new product. It can be anything, a new medicine, a new book, a new school, a new hospital ---- the list is endless. Advertisements also lead to competition and better products come in to the market.

As long as the competition is healthy, it is good. But advertisements have become cut throat. See the Cola wars. The competition between Coca Cola and Pepsi has made them spend crores on advertisement. Film stars are roped in to make the products popular. Huge hoardings can also prove dangerous for drivers.

Some advertisements are in bad taste too. And some of them are so attractively packaged that they persuade people to buy things which they do not need. For example, we buy things at annual sales first because they are cheap.

Questions
(i) ‘Advertisements are unavoidable for us’. Frame a question on this statement.
(ii) How are advertisements beneficial for us?
(iii) Choose a word from the passage which means the same as a large board used to display advertisements’.
(iv) ‘Advertisements have a negative impact on people’. Why?
(v) Do you agree that advertisements have become cut-throat?

Passage - 9
Butterflies are important as plant pollinators and as food for other animals (birds, mammals, spiders, and other insects). There are approximately 28,000 species of butterflies. Butterflies are in the order of insects called lepidoptera which is derived from the Latin word “Lepido” which means scale + “ptera” which means wing. Butterflies use their vision and scent glands to attract and find mates. Different species emit different attractive odours called pheromones. These odours may be detected from one to two km away. Butterflies range in size from a tiny 1/8 inch to a huge almost 12 inches. At night or during bad weather, butterflies will usually hang from the undersides of leaves, or crawl into crevices between rocks or other objects, and sleep.

Millions of shingle-like, overlapping scales give butterfly and moth wings their colours. Each scale is a single colour, most of which are produced by pigments. When we handle butterflies and moths, the “dust” that comes off is composed of these minute scales. Butterfly wings are otherwise actually transparent. Butterflies and insects have their skeletons on the outside of their bodies, called the exoskeleton. This protects the insect and keeps water inside their bodies so they don’t dry out. Antarctica is the only continent in which no Lepidoptera (Butterflies and Moths) have been found.

The butterfly was a symbol of immortality during ancient times. They believed butterflies represented the souls of the dead. Possibly they believed this because butterflies flocked around flowers that were used to decorate the graves. During the middle ages, many people in Europe believed in witches. It was thought that the witches took the form of the Butterfly to gain entrance to people’s homes to steal butter and milk.

Questions

1. Find the origin of the word ‘Butterfly’ from the passage? 1
2. What is the ‘dust’ that comes off from the wings of a butterfly or a moth? 2
3. From the passage find out any one old belief about the butterflies. 2

5. Find the words from the passage which mean the same as following :-
   (i) a strong smell
   (ii) to get something from something else

PASSAGE - 10

Urban birds have taken to singing at night because it is too noisy for their melodies to be heard during the daytime, researchers claim.

A study of robins in and around Sheffield, U.K. has found that birds nesting in areas that are noisy by day were more likely to sing at night than birds in quieter neighbourhoods. The researchers believe the birds have adopted the times at which they sing to be heard above the din of the city.

The report adds to growing evidence that birds are altering their behaviour to cope with modern life. Last year, scientists revealed that city dwelling great tits had developed a high pitched staccato song to attract their mates while their country cousins adopted a slower and longer twitter. The same year, another group found that American robins began their dawn chorus earlier in areas with lots of street lamps and other artificial lighting.

In the latest study, researchers at Sheffield University recorded sound levels at 121 sites across the city and beyond between April and June in 2005 & 2006. They heard robins singing during the day at 67 sites and active at night at 18.

Analysis showed that in areas where robins sing at night, the noise levels during the day were 10 decibels louder than at other sites, equivalent to a doubling in volume. At one site, where daytime traffic raised sound levels to 69 decibels, the researchers discovered a single robin that sang only at night.
The study appeared in the journal Biology Letters.

“This shows that there are subtle effects of urbanisation, and that birds are adapting their behaviours to overcome some of these problems.” said Richard Fuller at Sheffield University.

Passage - 11

A poor farmer died leaving only three things for his two sons - a mango tree, a blanket and a cow. The elder brother was very greedy and he made a rule to share these things between them. As per the rule the upper part of the mango tree and the back part of the cow belonged to him. The blanket belonged to him in the night and to the younger brother during the day.

The younger brother had to water the mango tree every day as the lower part belonged to him. The fruits were taken by the elder brother. As the front part of the cow belonged to the younger brother he used to feed the cow. The elder brother used the milk as the owner of the back part. The elder brother used to sleep comfortably in the night with the blanket.

After a few days the younger brother understood the injustice and he decided to play a trick. One day the elder brother was plucking a few mangoes. The younger brother took an axe and started cutting the tree. On enquiry he told his brother that the lower part belonged to him and he was free to do anything. When the elder brother started milking the cow, the younger brother hit the cow's head with a stick. The cow kicked the elder brother. During the day the younger brother kept the blanket in water also.

The elder brother understood his mistake and agreed to share the things equally.

Passage - 12

Read the following carefully and answer the questions:

One day a little Indian girl was shut up in a room alone for a whole day because she would not learn English. The child was Sarojini, who later on, as Sarojini Naidu became one of the most distinguished poets in the very language she had refused to learn.

Sarojini, like the rest of her family, was educated in her early years under her father's own care. Her father wanted her to become a great mathematician or scientist, but she did not like doing sums or conducting experiments. She loved to dream and write poems. She wrote her first poem when she was hardly eleven. At the age of thirteen she wrote a long poem in the manner of the famous English poets. In this way she began her poetic career.

After passing the matriculation examination in India, and before she was fifteen, she went to England for higher education. It was during her stay in London that she met Sir Edmund Gosse, a distinguished man of letters of the time. He was very impressed by her knowledge, intelligence and learning. When he came to know from her that she wrote English verse, he asked her to show him some of her poems. On reading her poems, he was surprised to find that they were written in almost faultless English but was disappointed that they had nothing of the east in them. They were all about English sight, and this day onwards, she devoted herself to writing verses about India.

Questions:

a) The first paragraph gives us two facets of Sarojini Naidu's life. What are they?

b) Why could Sarojini fulfil wishes of her father?

c) How did she show her literary taste at an early age?

d) What did Sir Edumund Gosse advise her?

Q.2. Instructions: (Unseen Passage: 300 words)

Read the passage given below carefully and answer the questions that follow. All passages given in this section are about 300 words carrying 12 marks each.

Passage - 1

The teenage years are the most difficult period of one’s life. It is the period when the kids are growing up. They are discovering that the world is not rosy as pictured in the story books, movies or television serial. They become aware of the so called “hypocritical” world around them. The tensions are great, problems are many and answers and solutions are few, hence a clash of values. Thus they often feel bewildered and lonely.

Experts in human development classify the teenage years as the “social” stage. It is that time when young people learn to get along with others - first with those of their own gender, then the members of the opposite sex. But some children, don’t mix with others because they haven’t learnt to fit in with their age group. Or they are terribly self conscious about their appearance or abilities. Some young people felt loved and accepted as children but encounter much more difficulty in their teenage years. The reason is that they are finding themselves and are declaring their own independence. They consider they no longer need the advice and preaching of those around. Meanwhile, even though you are sure that you can make it in life, mom and dad don’t seem to agree. They want to supervise your every decision. They are ready to pass judgements and you feel frustrated and tense. Some children feel unwanted and lonely when parents get divorced. The teenager caught in the middle often blames himself when the facilities of his life are cut away setting him desperate. Unable to understand his feelings, he soon withdraws into himself. His other friends from happy homes can’t relate to his sorrow. Shyness, a feeling of being clumsy, ugly, unpopular, a broken relationship are some of the aspects which cause tension in a teenager’s life.

Finally, instead of lamenting, “It’s the end of the world”, the teenager can definitely lessen the tensions by adopting a positive approach to life. This can be achieved by being optimistic, making good friends, gaining self confidence, plunging into activities like sports, etiquette classes, music, talking to counsellors, pursuing short term courses etc, in short, taking stock of oneself and setting a goal.

Questions:

(i) Why is there a clash of values in teenage? 2

Passage - 2

When my maternal uncle was alive, his only son quietly made plans to settle in Germany with his wife. Without informing his father or sister he bought tickets and sold all movable things at home. A week before he left, everyone was informed of his plans. People criticised him for abandoning his father. The married daughter who was settled in Bhopal, shifted to Delhi to look after her father. A year later the father was admitted to a private hospital and died. The son came from Germany, paid the bills and performed all the death ceremonies.

People now said that after all he had come all the way so he was not a bad son. No word about how he had neglected his father or how his sister had to disrupt her personal life to take care of old Dad.

This is what life teaches every daughter. That our society values a son more because he has the religious sanction to perform death ceremonies and grant them liberation - (mukti). A daughter may have given them love, care, sensitivity, time, service, but the son gets preference because he carries forward the family name and performs shraadh. He may be uncaring, arrogant and indifferent.
but for parents a son is their treasure.

Two years back in our neighbourhood a man died without leaving a will. His only son sold the bungalow and took away his sick mother without informing his three sisters who then approached the courts for a share of the property. Is this the family structure we boast of to the world? Where does love and laughter vanish when siblings become adults? Are we right in blaming a newly wed for poisoning a son's brain? Love for a daughter has to come from within. Saints repeatedly clarify that death ceremonies need not be performed only by one's own son. And what guarantee is there that a son will perform the shraadh? If parents do not reciprocate a daughter’s love, won’t Heaven, which claims to be just and fair, reproach them for their insensitivity?

Questions:

(i) Why did people criticise the son? 1
(ii) The girl shifted from Bhopal to Delhi. Why? 1
(iii) People changed their views about the son later on. Why? Do you agree with their views? 2
(iv) The parents consider their son as a treasure because:
   (a) He is uncaring and arrogant.
   (b) He goes abroad to earn money
   (c) He sells the property
   (d) He carries forward the family name.
(v) Daughters are the gifts for the parents. Do you agree? Give reason. 2
(vi) Find words from the passage which mean same as -
    (a) leave permanently (b) disappear suddenly
(vii) Do you think that society is insensitive to a daughter’s love for her parents? Give an example. 2
(viii) Frame two questions based on the underlined part of the passage. 2

Passage - 3

In the spring of 1616, Francis Beaumont and William Shakespeare died within a few weeks of each other. Beaumont became the first dramatist to be honoured with burial in the national shrine of Westminster Abbey. Shakespeare was laid to rest in the provincial obscurity of his native Stratford-upon-Avon.

We now think of Shakespeare as a unique genius, but these two very different burials are a reminder that in his own time, though widely admired, he was but one of the constellation of theatrical stars. How is it, then that in the 18th and 19th centuries Shakespeare’s fame outstripped that of all his peers? In the same year that Beaumont and Shakespeare died, Ben Jonson became the first English dramatist to publish a collected edition of his own plays. Seven years later, Shakespeare’s fellow actors John Hemings and Henry Condell followed with their folio-sized collection of William Shakespeare’s Comedies, Histories and Tragedies, published according to the true original copies. Whereas Jonson’s works got only a single reprint after his death, Shakespeare’s Folio got reprinted three times before the end of the century. Later on, Dryden and his contemporaries took considerable liberties in polishing and “improving” Shakespeare’s plays for performance. According to the law of poetic justice, wholly innocent characters should not be allowed to die: Nahum Tate therefore rewrote. King Lear (1681) with a happy ending in which Cordelia marries Edgar.

It is universally acknowledged that Shakespeare’s gift of poetic invention surpassed that of any writer before or since Shakespeare endures because, with each new turn of history, a new dimension of his work opens up before us. His plays will always strike a resonance with the times.

Early in 1934, when the French Socialist government was close to collapse, a new translation of Coriolanus was staged in Paris. The production was perceived as an attack on democratic institutions. Later on, the same play was staged in the The Maly Theatre Company in Stalin’s Moscow which sought to demonstrate that Coriolanus was an “enemy of people” and therefore Shakespeare was a true socialist. But he was neither an absolutist nor a democrat, but the fact is that he continues to live through his work four centuries after his death.

(ii) Give one example to show that Shakespeare was more famous than his peers.

       (d) a democrat
(vii) Frame a question based on the underlined part of the passage

Passage - 4

Decision making is a very vital part of our lives. This is because what we are today is largely a result of the decisions we took in the past. Similarly, whatever happens tomorrow will be a result of the decisions we take in the present.

It is not possible to reverse the wrong decisions taken in the past but it is possible to train ourselves into becoming a good decision-maker for the future. If we don’t we’ll end up doing what we’ve always done and thus get what we’ve always got philosoper Walter Kaufman has called this Decidophobia.

All sorts of decisions big or small, relevant or irrelevant, conscious or unconscious punctuate our lives. Sometimes, we don’t even realise we are taking a decision. Those who avoid taking a decision leave everything to chance and float along life with a ‘what will be, will be attitude’.
To enhance our decision-making, we must, first of all, gather as much information as possible about the issue before we make our decision. We might be heading for a failure if our decisions are based on half-baked information.

If you have a set of guiding principles for your life, decision-making becomes a lot easier. For example, if you have value integrity and honesty and consider them to be of vital importance, you will never waver.

Sometimes decisions are very difficult to make especially when the odds seem to be against us. In this case, giving ourselves a little time to decide wouldn’t be a bad idea at all. Circumstances may change with time and then it may be easier to see which action is more preferable to the others.

Being clear about your goals can facilitate decision making of we know exactly where we want to be or what we want to do in the next five years or even ten, we will decide to undertake actions which will lead us to our goals, so outline your short and long term goals in black and white.

Action is a vital consequence of decision making. It is the necessary follow-up. Only when we act, will we get a feedback of whether our decision has been correct or not and then we can proceed in a more focused way. So, it is essential to move from the world of thought to the arena of action.

Passage - 5

In each plane, men peered anxiously over their guns into the darkness. This was the time when enemy fighter planes might attack. One of the air-gunners was Nick-Alkemade. He was a rear-gunner and he sat in the rear-gun seat - a small bubble at the very tail of the plane. It was so small that, before climbing in, Nick had taken off his parachute and left it in another part of the plane. He felt more comfortable without it.

Suddenly the sky lit up and the air was full of exploding sheels. Hundreds of anti-aircraft guns had opened fire. There was a terrible explosion, and the whole aircraft shook as if a giant’s hand had seized it. The middle part of the plane burst into flames and Nick heard the captain shout, ‘We’re on fire! Jump!’

At first Nick could not get out of his seat. The seat belt was stuck. After struggling with all his strength for several moments, he forced it open. He looked for his parachute but it was already burning. He had to make a crucial decision; he could stay in the plane and be burnt to death or he could jump without a parachute and be smashed to death on the ground, after falling 6000 meters. He jumped.

The cold air hit him and he could not breathe. At this height the air is too thin to breathe properly. As Nick began to lose consciousness, he thought. ‘So this is what it is like to die.’ Then he remembered no more. When he woke up sometime later, he could not believe that he was alive. Slowly he looked up he saw a large fir tree. Its branches had broken his fall, and the pile of snow had completed his soft landing.

When he got to his feet, he found that his back and one leg hurt, but he was able to walk. He made his way to a German farm, and soon he was a prisoner, in a hospital bed. At first the German did not believe his story. They thought he was a spy. Later, however, they found the crashed plane and his partly burnt parachute with his name and number on it. They were so impressed that they gave him a certificate to prove that he really had jumped five-and-a-half kilometers without a parachute.

Questions:

(i) Why did Nick have to take off his parachute? 2
(ii) What crucial decision did Nick have to make, after his plane caught fire? 1
(iii) Frame two questions based on the underlined part of the passage. 2
(iv) Find out two things that helped to save Nick’s life even after falling from 6000 meters. 2

Passage - 6

What makes you cry? What is crying? Sounds like a dumb question, right? But in about sixty interviews taken, virtually everyone first said something like “Gee, I never really thought about --- ---------------” And neither had the scientific community until just recently.

Tears are shed at the best of times and the worst of times. But mostly the worst of times. But mostly the worst. We do occasionally cry for joy sometimes mixed with relief. But we more often cry in grief, rage, pity and rejection. We feel it’s good to let out our feelings to be able to express vulnerability. So, we figure it’s healthy that men are feeling more comfortable about crying when they are sad or touched.

Those of us who find crying a natural response to hurt still try to suppress tears in public places or in front of a frightened child or a boss. Working women often have to deal with men who mistakenly assume they will cry if crossed or encountered. Crocodile tears aside, women have almost always granted crying its psychological benefits. What none of us ever expected was that crying would turn out to be good for the body as well as good for the soul.

William H. Frey, a biochemist believes that shedding tears rids the body of toxic chemicals produced under emotional stress. Although too early for conclusive results, comparison of tears shed in emotion and in response to eye irritants suggests that emotional tears do contain chemicals known to be associated with emotional stress. Frey believes that sad or depressed who cannot function may be experiencing a metabolic imbalance due to toxins produced by their distress.

Another indication that crying is a necessary excretory function comes from Dr. Hans Selye, the former director of the Institute of Experimental Medicine and Surgery. He says, “We are just beginning to see that many common diseases are largely due to errors in our adaptive response to stress, rather than by direct damage by germs, poisons or other external agents. And weeping, when we have a cause is essential. The voices that follow demonstrate that crying like all our other forms of expression bears a very personal stamp.

Questions

(i) Name two situations when we cry.

(ii) What are the benefits we get from crying? (any two)

(iii) What is the opinion of William H. Frey on shedding tears?

(iv) What does the phrase ‘crocodile tears’ imply?

(v) What do men mistakenly assume about women?

(vi) Frame two questions based on the underlined part of the passage.
(vii) Many common diseases are caused due to -
   (a) direct damage by germs
   (b) poisons
   (c) other external agents
   (d) errors in our adaptive response to stress.

Passage - 7

Man’s urge to communicate with his associates brought about speech and writing. But it was only when man developed an aesthetic sense and sought for beauty and rhythm and dynamisms in the hand written words that a whole new field, began to emerge. The art of calligraphy which imparts beauty and rhythm into the written words, offers endless possibilities to render handwriting into a thing of beauty and consequently often adds a new dimension to the expression.

The word ‘Calligraphy’ is a composite adaptation of two Greek words Kallos (beauty) and graphein (to write). It is primarily an art and perhaps one of the most intimate, spontaneous and personal expression. There is really no standard yardstick to measure or compare the different calligraphic works. It is so unique that a personal style begins to form with all those who practise it seriously. And it is these characteristic features that did to the uniqueness and perhaps suggest something different for everyone. Like any other form of art, calligraphy too has always been influenced by the cultures and traditions of a certain age. Although the basic forms of letters remain the same, the approach to render them has constantly altered, matching the moods of people and time.

Whatever the mood and time, in calligraphy the layout or the composition is very important. So much so that celebrated calligraphers consider the style and the quality of lettering to be playing only a second fiddle. The composition should be balanced and ought to have a visual rhythm. The most successful calligraphic works are those that have a dynamic movement - as though the calligrapher has put a few drops of his life blood into his writing. This is where calligraphy turns creative and the calligrapher becomes an artist who, through his pen, puts life into writings and makes it appear really living. At this stage, the letter forms like the notes of music, becomes for him tangible figures through which he expresses some of his feelings and emotions. Like any other activity good calligraphy is the creation of a concentrated mind, a trained hand and a feeling heart.

Our feeling for Calligraphy and our future in it has nothing to do with the nature of jobs we do, nor with how history treats our art form. Whether it is a museum treasure, a piece of printed ephemesa, an informal note or a single, beautifully written character, it is the same for us. We celebrate and appreciate each other for what we do with such humble tools as pens ------- brushes and a few drops of hearthood in our ink.

Passage - 8

A chocolate tree may sound like something made up in a book or film, but chocolate really does come from trees. A tree called the ‘cacao’ is the source of all cocoa powder and chocolate.

Cocoa trees grow only in warm areas that get a lot of rain. The trees grow long fruit called ‘pods’ that range in colour from bright yellow to deep purple. Inside the pods are rows of seeds called cocoa ‘beans’. Each is about the size and shape of a big fingernail. It is from these cocoa beans that we get one of the world’s favourite foods i.e. chocolate.

A lot of things have to be done to the beans before they form into chocolate. After the cocoa beans are taken out of the pods, they are left in a damp place for a few days. The beans turn into a rich colour and begin to smell like chocolate. Then they are dried and cleaned. Next the beans are shipped to chocolate factories all over the world. There they are roasted and ground into a paste. This paste contains a fatty yellow liquid ‘cocoa-butter’. To make dry cocoa powder, you have to remove all the cocoa butter.

The chocolate is still not ready to eat though cocoa beans are not naturally sweet. In fact the paste is very bitter. So, a lot of sugar must be mixed in it. Milk may be added too. The chocolate is then poured into moulds to harden into chocolate bars. Now it is finally ready to eat.

Chocolate is liked by all irrespective of child or adult. Children are very fond of eating chocolates. Now-a-days different types of edible products mixed with chocolate powder are available in the market. Some of them are chocolate ice-cream, chocolate coffee, chocolate tea and chocolate milk.

Walter Hudson, who died at Hempstead, New York, aged 46, was once listed in the Guinness Book of World Records as the heaviest man on earth.

About 183 cm tall and 274 cm around, with cherubic features set off by pigtails braided in the cherokee style, he long devoted himself to the pleasures of the table. He was born at Brooklyn in 1945 and, as he recalled, “began gorging at the age of six. At 15 he was so obese that his legs collapsed underneath him and he was confined to bed.

Hudson’s eating habits were fuelled by food brought in by members of his family. He would generally start his day with a breakfast of two pounds of bacon, 32 sausages, a dozen eggs, a loaf of bread, jam and coffee.

When not eating and sleeping, he would watch television, listen to tapes and read the Bible. Hudson, though, was advised against sitting up for longer than five minutes because of the risk of being smothered by flab, the only exercise he engaged in was when he attended to his ablutions; it took him an hour to negotiate the six yards to the bathroom from his bedroom. Then in 1987, he found himself wedged in the doorway.

Dock Gregory, a comedian who masterminded the slim safe Diet scheme placed Hudson on 1,200 calorie-a-day diet of raw fruit and orange juice. For exercise he was advised to lie in bed waving his arms about like a conductor.

Hudson soon lost some four inches off his knees and within three months had shed 178 kg. It began to look as if he might fulfil such ambitions as visiting his mother’s grave, riding on the New York subway, driving into the country and even flying to a clinic in a Bahamas.

But it was not to be. At the time of his death, of an apparent heart attack, Hudson reportedly weighed 508 kg. Rescue workers had to cut a large hole in the wall of his bedroom to remove the body. He was unmarried.

They are also used for making candles and bio-diesel.

Soy is an excellent source of high quality protein; is low in saturated fats and is cholesterol free. The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) has confirmed that foods containing soy protein are likely to reduce the risk of coronary heart diseases. In recent times it has been highly recommended because of its ability to lower the level of LDL low density Lipoprotein, a bad cholesterol.

An easy way to take soy is as soymilk now available with added flavour. Soymilk doesn't contain lactose (milk sugar) and can be drunk by those who are allergic to normal milk. Mother’s Day - How it all began (300 words)

Now-a days, Mother’s Day celebrations are held throughout the word though they may not fall at the same time. The way of celebrating may also differ but the purpose is the same. It is to honour the mother and to feel and cherish the beautiful bonds we share with her. It would be interesting to find out how the idea of Mother’s Day first took root and who was its originator.

The first celebrations were held in spring in ancient Greece, by paying tribute to Rhea, the ‘Mother of God’s. During the 17th century, England honoured mothers by celebrating ‘Gathering Sunday’ on the fourth Sunday of Lent. In the United States Julia Ward Howe suggested the idea in 1872 and perceived Mothers Day as being dedicated to peace.

But it was Anna Jarvis of Philadelphia who brought about official observance of Mother’s Day. She wanted this day to be a holiday and launched a campaign for it. This she did in memory of her mother who died in 1905 and who had in the late 19th century, tried to establish ‘Mother’s Friendship Days’ as a way to heal the scars of Civil War.

In 1907, Jarvis held a ceremony in Grafton West Virginia, to honour her mother. The proceedings moved her so greatly that she began a massive campaign to adopt a formal holiday for honouring mothers in 1910, West Virginia became the first state to recognise Mother’s Day. A year later, nearly every state officially marked the day. In 1914 President Woodrow Wilson officially proclaimed Mother’s Day as a national holiday to be held on the second Sunday of May.

But all her efforts to make Mother’s Day full of sentiment and love proved futile when she found that the holiday had been commercialised. Her accomplishment turned bitter for her. He fought against the commercialization of this day, she filed a law suit to stop a 1923 Mother Day. She was even arrested for disturbing the peace at a War Mother Convention when women sold white Carnations.
White Carnations was her symbol for mothers, helping her to raise money. She never intended this day to be one for profit making and hat was exactly what it had become. Jarvis was never a mother herself. She spent her material fortune trying to stop the commercialization of the holiday she founded.

Questions:

Practice Paper II
Section A : Reading

Time : 3 Hrs.  M.M. 100

1. Read the passage given below and answer the questions that follow : 8

DANGER OF IDLENESS

Idleness is a great vice and a great danger. It is the father of all evils. There is a proverb which says that, “An idle man’s brain is the devil’s workshop.” This is very true. Having nothing to do, the idle man turns his attention to sin. A life of idleness is a life of sin. It brings with it misery and want. It is the root of all evils.

We sometimes think it would be nice if we had no work to do. We envy the rich who do not have to work for a living and have holidays from January to December. We wish to be like them in our lifestyles too. But we should realise that if the rich had really been idle they may not have become rich.

Again, an idle boy grows up to be an idle man. He makes no progress in life. He loses out on some of the best chances in his life simply because of his idleness.

The story of the hare and the tortoise is to the point. The hare who was proud of his speed was beaten by the slow-moving tortoise, simply because one idled away most of the race sleeping while the other one kept working hard.

It is improper for a youth to be idle. It eats away all his energies. It is a foolish person who says, “I have nothing to do.” There are so many things to do in the world. There are so many problems waiting to be solved. What can be more noble than trying to solve them?

People who do not have to work for their livelihood are less fortunate than those who have to earn their living. The former will soon become discontented and miserable while the latter will always enjoy health, peace and happiness. Only an honest worker can enjoy respect and dignity.

Questions :

(a) Life of idleness is a life of sin. Why ? 1

(b) Why are the people who do not work for their livelihood less fortunate ? 2

(c) Complete the sentence :

The father of all evils is ____________________

(d) An idle man makes no progress in life. Give reason. 1

(e) Do you agree that the rich need not work for a living? Give evidence from the passage. 2

(f) Find the words from the passage which mean the same as -

(i) jealous (ii) having good luck

2. Read the passage given below and answer the questions that follow : 8
A Life for all seasons

There was a man who had four sons. He wanted his sons to learn not to judge things too quickly. So he sent them each on a quest, in turn, to go and look at a pear tree that was a great distance away. The first son went in the winter, the second in the spring, the third in summer, and the youngest son in the autumn. When they returned, he called them together to describe what they had seen. The “winter” son said that the tree was ugly, bent and twisted. The “spring” son said no, it was covered with green buds and full of promise. The “summer” son disagreed; he said it was laden with blossoms that smelled so sweet and looked so beautiful, it was the most graceful thing he had ever seen. The “autumn” son disagreed with all of them; he said it was ripe and drooping with fruit, full of life and fulfillment. The man then explained to his sons that they were all correct, because they had each seen but one season in the tree’s life.

In the same fashion, we cannot judge a person in a single encounter. To understand a person, one has to know his philosophy, his views, his behavior towards fellow beings, towards the environment. Both with him and with ourselves, don’t let the pain of one season destroy the joy of all the rest. The same person may behave pleasingly in different circumstances, as we ourselves do when life is going well for us. So let us try to be mutually tolerant.

Don’t our actions and behavior depend on the circumstances? We weep when we are sad, laugh when we are happy, curse when we are disappointed and shout when we are angry. However, a mature person remains steadfast in views and behavior. That’s why sages advise us not to judge life or each other by one difficult season. Persevere through the difficult patches, and better times are sure to come some time. If winter comes, can spring be far behind?

Questions:

(a) Why did the father send his sons on a quest?  2

Section - A (Reading) 20 Marks

1. Read the passage given below and answer the questions that follow: (12 marks)

Kausani is situated at a height of 6,075 feet in the Central Himalayas. It is an unusually attractive little town. It covers just about 5.2 sq km. It lies north of Almora in Uttrakhand’s picturesque Kumaon region.

Kausani provides the 300-km wide breathtaking view of the Himalayas. It is the most striking aspect of this place. Snow capped peaks are spread in a stately row. They stare at you in silvery white majesty. The most famous peak on view is Nanda Devi, the second highest mountain in India. It is situated at a height of 25,645 feet and 36 miles away as the crow flies. The other famous peaks on view are Choukhamba (23,420 feet) and Trishul (23,360 ft.). Then there are also Nilkanth, Nandaghunti, Nandaghat and Nandakot. On a clear day, the blue of the sky makes a splendid background to these peaks. At sunrise and sunset, when the colour changes to a golden orange, the scene gets etched in your memory.

When Gandhiji visited this place in 1929, its scenic beauty held him spellbound. He named it the ‘Switzerland of India’. He prolonged his two-day stay to fourteen days, making time to write a book, ‘Anashakti Yoga’. The place where he was staying was originally a guesthouse of the tea estate. It was renamed “Anashakti Ashram” after the book.

Kausani is the birth place of Sumitranandan Pant, India’s poet laureate. Its natural surroundings inspired many of his poems. Its tea gardens mingle with dense pine forests and fruits orchards. The area is also host to many fairs and religious ceremonies. If Uttranchal is the abode of Gods, Kausani is God’s own backyard. There is no traffic, no one is in a hurry. If serenity could be put on a canvas, the picture would resemble Kausani.

2. Read the passage given below and answer the questions that follow: (8 marks)

A gentleman was repeatedly picking up starfish along a beach in Mexico. He was throwing them into the sea. When asked why he was doing so; he said, “I am throwing these starfish back into the ocean because they came in with the high tide and now the tide has receded, they will die here, stranded.” “But there must be thousands on every beach. You can’t possibly make a difference”, asked the other man. The man smiled, lifted yet another starfish and as he threw it back into the sea, said, “made a difference to that one.”

The story shows that it is not the big things only that really count in life. In fact all great people build their character by doing small day-to-day good actions. Gandhiji, once, was standing in the open compartment door of a speeding train. He was lost in his thoughts when one of his ‘chappals’ slipped from his foot and fell down. The moment he realized it was gone, he dropped the other one too. On being asked why he did so he replied, “One chappal is of no use to me, nor to him who finds the dropped one. So he might as well have the full pair.” This incident shows that nothing was too insignificant for Gandhiji.

(a) What was the gentleman doing with the starfish at the shore? Why? 2
(b) Did he make any difference? What was that? 2
